Transforming Leaders, Teams And Organizations

EMERGENT LEADER

CREATING OPPORTUNITIES AND A SENSE OF PURPOSE.

WHO IS AN EMERGENT LEADER?

They are someone who has a clear sense of awareness about who they want to be and how they choose to make a difference at work, in family, and in the community. Clear communication, intuitive listening, and the courage to have “missing conversations” are key to building lasting, fruitful relationships. Learn to recognize working styles different from your own to energize those around you and guide your team toward the achieving the goals you set together.

By completing this course, leaders will have:

- A personalized vision of the characteristics that will lead to leadership greatness and an action plan that identifies the gaps and how to fill them;
- A strong understanding of the best practices in a) communicating clearly, b) demystifying the real way to listen, and c) achieving confidence in having difficult conversations;
- The ability to identify others’ working styles and preferences, and how best to work with people who are different from themselves;
- A strong appreciation for what drives high performing teams, and the knowledge to both strengthen trust within the team and create a vision that unites all members of the team;
- The skills needed to drive performance: coaching others, managing appropriately to another’s competency and motivation, and using feedback to encourage strong performance in others.
